

BENJAMIN CHAPMAN

SMALL-BATCH WHISKEY

Smooth, in every sense.

The coat check noticed a small piece of paper fall from the man's chesterfield as he dashed out the door. She unfurled it and smiled, revealing a beautifully penned thank-you note, addressed "Dear Whiskey." The moment bore all the hallmarks of an encounter with the elusive Benjamin Chapman. This eponymous whiskey celebrates the man's refined lust for life with its hints of biscotti, baked pineapple and cinnamon.

BENJAMIN CHAPMAN

TASTE PROFILE

AROMA Rich, golden color with pale straw hues as the whiskey swirls in the glass. Aromas open with fresh cornbread, smooth vanilla cream and butterscotch layered against baked pineapple upside-down cake, biscotti and toasty almonds.

TASTE Delicate and soft on the entry, tropical notes from the aromas are prominent on the velvety palate with baked upside-down pineapple cake.

FINISH The finish is warm and lasting, with flavors of toasted oak spreading throughout.

WHISKEY

Benjamin Chapman 4-Year Corn is fitted with a mash of 80% Corn, 11% Rye and 9% Malt. Sourced and produced in the United States, the water source for distillation is Kentucky Limestone Water which imparts important minerals and acts as a unique filter for the base liquid. The primary distillation takes place in a column still with the subsequent distillation in a continuous pot still that acts as a doubler to extract flavors.

After distillation, the whiskey is then placed in bourbon seasoned barrels that had been used to age bourbon for just 2 years from new barrels. The liquid is then aged for four years in barrel, reaching the optimal amount of time for oak influence. The result is a remarkably unique and smooth, small-batch whiskey.

INSPIRATION

It is a mystery yet to be solved as to who Benjamin Chapman was. From what is known, he was a fascinating man from the classic 1960's era with a refined preference for the finer things. This whiskey, crafted in small batches with a legendary smoothness, is akin to his lasting memory.

DESIGN

The diamond faceted bottle shape was selected in resemblance to an intricate crystal tumbler often used for classic whiskey cocktails. A prominently etched "BC" signature is located on the bar top, similar to those signatures left behind on a hotel receipt or reservation by Benjamin Chapman. The main label shows subtle lines as a fashionable tweed suit of the 60's era would have.

Gold foil is used in many applications honoring traditional gold cuff links and men's jewelry that was often worn at the time. A strand of intricately designed diamonds lay vertically over a rich ruby red – a color and design you might see on a silk tie.
